Focus on Faith-based institutions

Having the right approach towards data/information management is very critical in any institution. With the appropriate and efficient applications in place, an institution can cut up to 70% of its expenses compared to manual management approaches which have proved to be time-consuming, very costly and most of all very inaccurate.

Faith-based institutions are not any different, and can be even more complex and difficult to manage compared to other institutions due to its high level of paperwork involved and presence of dependent activities. The conventional mode of management in such institutions is highly manual and comes with a lot of costs from running the operations.

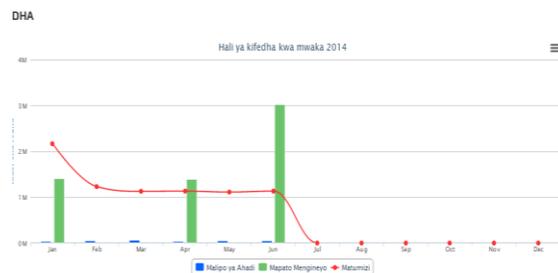

Kanisa MIS is an application which is aiming towards efficiently managing faith-based institutions achieving maximum transparency and access to useful reports at an affordable cost. With an efficient system that capture all the critical activities within the faith-based institutions, the stakeholders can minimize the workload required to manage and easily access useful information for decision making.
